Reading Task 2

Read the text and answer the questions below. Choose the correct option, a, b, c, or d. An example has been done for you.

Para. 1

Eleanor Roosevelt (1884 -1962) was the wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd president of the United States. She was, in her time, one of the world's most GAP)_____ admired and powerful women.

Eleanor Roosevelt was born on October 11, 1884, in Manhattan, New York City. Eleanor grew up in a wealthy family that greatly valued community service. Both her parents died before she was 10, and she and her brother were raised by relatives.

At the age of 15 Eleanor was sent to Allenswood, a girls' boarding school just outside London, in the United Kingdom. She really admired the French headmistress there, Marie Souvestre. Souvestre's interest in learning and her taste for travel and excellence—in everything but sports—inspired Eleanor to take up similar interests. She later described her three years there as the happiest time of her life. In the summer of 1902, she returned to New York. At that time, young girls were expected to start attending parties and gatherings organised by their families and neighbours. That's why Eleanor had to leave England, but she wasn't happy about it. Following family tradition, she devoted time to community service, including voluntary teaching.

Soon after Eleanor returned to New York, she fell in love with Franklin Roosevelt, and they were married in 1905 in New York City. His taste for fun contrasted with how serious she was. The couple had six children together.

After Franklin won a seat in the New York Senate in 1911, the family moved to Albany. When Franklin was appointed assistant secretary of the navy in 1913, the family moved to Washington, D.C. Eleanor spent the next few years performing the social duties expected of a politician's wife, including attending formal parties and visiting the homes of other government officials. She mostly found that these duties gave her very little personal satisfaction.

When the United States joined World War I in April 1917, Eleanor was able to start her volunteer work again. She visited wounded soldiers and worked in a Red Cross canteen. This work increased her sense of confidence, and she wrote later, "I loved it...I simply ate it up."

Para. 7

Towards the end of the 1910s', the couple experienced a very difficult period in their relationship, but decided to stay together for a number of reasons. The Roosevelts' marriage settled into a routine in which they focused on their own work GAP)_____ remaining respectful of each other.

In 1920, Franklin stood to become a vice-president of the United States, but didn't get enough votes. At this time Eleanor's interest in politics increased. She joined the Women's Trade Union League and became active in the New York State Democratic Party.

Para. 9

Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected governor of New York in 1928 and served from 1 January 1929 until his election as President of the United States four years later. During that time, Eleanor found an opportunity to combine the responsibilities of a politician's wife with her own growing career and personal independence. She continued to teach at Todhunter, a girls' school in Manhattan GAP)_____ she and two friends had purchased.

Para. 10

When Franklin took office as president in 1933, Eleanor dramatically changed the role of the first lady. During her 12 years, the GAP 1)_____ of Eleanor's activities and her support for liberal causes made her nearly as controversial a figure as her husband. She started regular White House press conferences for women correspondents. She acted as her husband's eyes and ears throughout the nation, going on extensive tours around the country and reporting to him on living conditions and public opinion. Many people GAP 2)_____ warmly to her interest in their welfare. Beginning in 1936 she wrote a daily newspaper column, "My Day." She showed particular interest in child welfare, housing reform, and equal rights for women and ethnic minorities.

After President Roosevelt's death in 1945, President Harry S. Truman offered Eleanor a post at the United Nations (UN), where she worked as a chairman of the Commission on Human Rights, and played a major role in the creation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. She also continued to be an active member of the Democratic Party.

In 1961 President John F. Kennedy gave her the job of the chair of his Commission on the Status of Women, and she continued with that work until shortly before her death.

The YWP Ranger Academy is aimed at those who are wishing to pursue a career working with animals. This course has been specially designed for students between 15-17 years of age. Students who are going to work within the animal GAP 2)_____ as vets, vet nurses or animal keepers will all benefit from this exciting new course.

Text B - The Deep

The Deep is a public aquarium in Hull, England. Its aim is to increase people's enjoyment and understanding of the world's oceans. It opened in March 2002. Since then, over eight million people have visited.

Known as "the world's only submarium", the tanks contain thousands of sea creatures from every sea in the world, including seven species of shark. It is also a landmark centre for studying the marine environment. Many of the staff are biologists. They look after the animals in the collections and carry out investigations into the marine environment.

The Deep offers visitors an opportunity to follow a chronological journey through the oceans from the beginning of time to the present day. There is also a high-tech 3D interactive area where visitors can learn to control an underwater diving vessel using computer joysticks. Because of the risk of infection, unfortunately there are no opportunities to feed or touch any of the residents.

The aquarium runs an education programme, which hosts 30,000 primary and secondary school students each year. The Deep also has group sleepovers in their offer (remember to bring your pyjamas), and a variety of special GAP)_____ during the year.

Text C - Amazonia - Scotland's Only Indoor Tropical Rainforest

A unique place for fun and learning for all ages, Amazonia is a temperature controlled tropical house, GAP)_____ to over 70 different species. Amazonia is themed on the Amazon rainforest in South America, the largest rainforest in the world! All our animals come from that area.

During your visit, you will be taken on a guided tour of Amazonia where you can see your favourite animals, have a chance to feed the fish, have a private animal handling session and then be digitally 'transported' into the rainforest in our interactive room!

We have put together educational packages for all age groups from nursery age upwards. For more information visit our website. Educational visits last for approximately 1 hour and 30 minutes. They consist of a guided tour, and an interactive session with one of our experienced educational team.

Amazonia is a proud holder of the Green Tourism Silver Award, so you can be sure that you will be in good hands during your visit.
